

OHSTS Training Catalog

Serving Adult Protective Service Workers, Supervisors, and Community Partners

Revised April 20, 2021

Welcome to the Ohio Human Services Training System (OHSTS) for Adult Protective Service (APS) Workers, Supervisors, and Community Partners! Our mission is to strengthen best practice in adult protective services through comprehensive skill development, collaboration, and advocacy. This training catalog provides an overview of OHSTS trainings available to include core training, eLearnings and ongoing training for caseworkers and supervisors.

Currently scheduled sessions: Browse Courses \(gohsignmeup.com\)

For APS Staff:

Registration for all classroom trainings and eLearnings occur through OHSTS' learning management system (LMS). To request an account, click on this link: LMS AddPerson - Ohio Human Services Training System \(ohsts.org\)

For Community Partners and Guests:

If you are not part of the LMS community, you are still able to attend OHSTS training (classroom and virtual instructor-led courses) as a guest on a space available basis. This includes DJFS staff who do not have LMS login privileges and employees of community partners. APS CORE Training

APS Laws and Regulations

The purpose of this workshop is for Adult Protective Services (APS) staff to understand applicable sections of the Ohio Revised Code (ORC) and Ohio Administrative Code (OAC) related to APS practice and to be able to find the legal reference when needed for application to a specific older adult's circumstances. Participants will work in small groups, formulating team responses to case study-related questions by finding the legal citation that applies to the circumstances of each case.

Case Planning

In Adult Protective Services (APS), the worker completes the assessment and then develops a case plan with the older adult that includes goals, objectives, and activities to reduce the older adult's risk of maltreatment. When the older adult has the capacity to participate in planning and consent to services, a voluntary case plan is developed. However, in situations where there has been a determination of extreme risk and the older adult lacks capacity or cannot consent to services, involuntary action may be necessary. In this workshop, we will examine how workers conclude that an involuntary action should be pursued. We will explore the case review process as well as the legal and ethical dilemmas surrounding the decision to use involuntary interventions.

Collaboration in APS

In this workshop, participants will learn the benefits, challenges, and barriers to successful collaboration in Adult Protective Services (APS). The fundamental elements and skills critical to effective team building within a collaborative partnership will be presented. Participants will be introduced to the role of an Interdisciplinary Team (I-Team) and Memorandums of Understanding (MOU's) in the field of APS and one's responsibility as a team member.

Dynamics of Older Adult Maltreatment (Elder Abuse)

In this workshop, participants will be able to define older adult abuse, neglect, and exploitation and identify the various dynamics that underlie each. Participants will explore the role of Adult Protective Services (APS) and how dynamics might inform case interventions.

Credits: OHSTS (6 credits); Social Work (5.5 CEUs); Counselor (5.5 CEUs)

Ethics, Values and Cultural Competence (eLearning only)

The purpose of this eLearning is to "demystify" ethics and offer a practical framework for ethical decision-making on the front lines. It will help Adult Protective Services (APS) professionals become more aware of their own value systems, their approach to decision-making, and it will give workers tools to analyze situations from a culturally competent standpoint. Additionally, this eLearning will assist APS workers in labeling, organizing, and understanding what they see, and it will help them analyze the consequences of the decisions facing them.

Initial Investigation

In this workshop, participants will learn how to evaluate initial intake reports for Adult Protective Services (APS) and how to prepare for the initial visit. Participants will be introduced to rapport building strategies when working with older adults and methods for conducting investigations of abuse, neglect, and exploitation. Participants will also learn methods for interviewing alleged perpetrators and how to assess dangerous situations.

Credits: OHSTS (6 credits); Social Work (5.5 CEUs); Counselor (5.5 CEUs)

Professional Communication

In this workshop, Adult Protective Service (APS) workers learn the basic components of professional communication in APS. Participants will understand the importance of fact-finding interviews, preparation techniques, and effective communication strategies. Participants will also learn about various investigative communication strategies and special considerations when working with older adults.

Credits: OHSTS (6 credits); Social Work (5.5 CEUs); Counselor (5.5 CEUs)

Risk Assessment

In this workshop, participants understand the importance of risk assessment in Adult Protective Services (APS) practice. Participants will understand how to assess risk across five (5) domains in terms of severity and urgency. Participants will learn the phases of a risk assessment, the difference between risk indicators and risk factors, and how to develop risk reduction case plans.

The Aging Process (eLearning only)

Aging is part of the normal physical and developmental life course. As is true in every phase of life, changes that occur in later life offer rewards, opportunities for growth, and physical and developmental challenges. In this dynamic, interactive 90-minute eLearning, participants will receive a basic understanding of the aging process that will enhance their ability to perform investigations and make evaluations.

APS e-Learnings (Self-Directed/On Demand)

APS Case Documentation and Report Writing (Parts 1, 2 and 3)

This eLearning is divided into three parts. Part one discusses the purpose of Adult Protective Services (APS) case documentation. In part two, workers learn about objective language. Part three outlines documentation equipment and APS confidentiality and reports.

Credits: OHSTS (2 credits); Social Work (2 CEUs); Counselor (2 CEUs)

APS Worker Safety

This self-paced interactive eLearning guides workers through safety considerations for entering unfamiliar neighborhoods and client's homes.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Assessing APS Clients' Decision-Making Capacity

This eLearning will help participants assess a client's decisional capacity by identifying the factors that affect decisional capacity, understanding the uses and limitations of the tools available to complete capacity assessments, and understanding the value and purpose of a formal capacity evaluation done by a clinical professional.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Caregiver or Perpetrator Neglect

This eLearning focuses on neglect that is perpetrated by formal and informal caregivers. This course is designed to help participants develop the tools needed to conduct a neglect investigation and to develop plans to help to reduce the risk of future neglect.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Case Closure in APS

This eLearning is designed to help Adult Protective Services workers explore the natural dynamics that occur at case closure, and the factors to consider in their decision-making process. Participants will learn how to recognize common feelings experienced at the time of closure and their impact on the case closure process, and how to identify criteria and conditions that indicate appropriateness or inappropriateness of closing an APS case. Participants will also apply an essential case closure checklist to case studies.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Collaboration in APS Work

This eLearning will help Adult Protective Services (APS) professionals work more collaboratively with workers from other agencies. This eLearning will not teach participants how to develop a multidisciplinary team, nor is it focused on working with a specific team.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Dynamics of Abusive Relationships

This eLearning will help Adult Protective Services (APS) professionals understand the dynamics of vulnerable adult abuse to enhance victim safety. Participants will learn about the definition of vulnerable adult abuse and the various dynamics, which underlie vulnerable adult abuse including the dynamics of power and control. Participants will explore the role of APS in cases of potential abuse and how power and control dynamics might inform case interventions. Participants will also learn why some victims may refuse services and stay with the abuser.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Elder Sexual Abuse

This self-paced interactive eLearning teaches participants the myths and realities of sexual violence as it relates to APS clients. Participants learn how to recognize and discuss sexual victimization, how to screen for and interview clients regarding sexual abuse and what interventions to offer victims. TRIGGER ALERT: This eLearning includes a video interview of an elderly woman who was raped by her grandson. If you or a family member/friend have experienced a sexual assault, please be sure to have a trusted individual available to debrief your reaction to video in case it triggers anxiety.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: An Introduction

In this engaging and highly interactive introductory eLearning, participants gain foundational information about the necessary and essential components for effective financial exploitation investigations. Participants will understand common victim and perpetrator characteristics; learn the various types of financial exploitation; understand decision making capacity and undue influence as they are related to financial exploitation cases; and describe the primary components of a financial exploitation investigation.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Deed Theft and Foreclosure Rescue Scams

Deed theft and foreclosure rescue scams are not new, and as we will see, they have changed over time. Resources built up over a lifetime have often been lost because these financial abuse perpetrators have convinced unwitting seniors to take their advice. With financial abuse on the rise, it is often the Adult Protective Services (APS) worker that first learns about these crimes, and quick action based on thorough knowledge about these types of scams may mean the difference between financial well-being and financial tragedy of the affected seniors.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Identity Theft and Credit Card Fraud

Identity theft and credit card fraud are two of the fastest growing crimes in the United States. Many of us have been victimized by one or the other; or know someone who has been victimized. Elders and dependent adults may be particularly vulnerable as they often are not as technologically savvy as many younger persons, and they may tend to trust others when it comes to financial transactions.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Living Trust and Annuities Scams

Living trusts and annuities are legitimate estate planning tools and/or documents that can be used legally for financial planning, or as a form of investment. Unfortunately, many unscrupulous persons have used them to defraud unsuspecting victims. In this eLearning, you will learn about living trusts and annuities, and how they may be used to victimize unsuspecting persons.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Power of Attorney Abuse

The subject of the Power of Attorney Abuses (POA) eLearning is to provide information about the various types of Power of Attorney documents that exist and indicators that Power of Attorney abuse may be taking place. This eLearning will also discuss the steps to pursue in investigating a possible Power of Attorney abuse case, as well as various types of legal remedies that can be pursued if Power of Attorney abuse is identified; as well as information on various professional partners that may assist you in intervening in one of these cases.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Reverse Mortgage Abuse

While reverse mortgages are a legal financial tool that allows homeowners to take out a loan against the equity in their home and to receive advance sums against the future sale of the property, some of the aspects of reverse mortgages make this an undesirable option for some seniors. In addition, some unscrupulous reverse mortgage sellers may take advantage of seniors seeking reverse mortgages to secure large commissions for themselves, or to outright defraud customers of their funds. In order to protect clients, it is important to understand what reverse mortgages are, when it is appropriate to pursue a reverse mortgage, and some tactics that unscrupulous sellers may use to take unfair advantage of or defraud senior customers.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Financial Exploitation: Undue Influence

The undue influence eLearning explores undue influence, its relationship to financial abuse, indicators of undue influence, and information pertinent to investigating cases of alleged financial abuse where undue influence may be a factor.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Interviewing Skills for APS Workers (Parts 1, 2 and 3)

This eLearning is a three-part series on Interviewing Skills for Adult Protective Service (APS) workers. The purpose of part one of this course is to teach caseworkers how to prepare for an effective APS interview. In part two, workers learn basic interviewing skills. Part three discusses how to structure a fact-finding interview and how to best structure questions during an interview.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Involuntary Case Planning for APS Workers (Parts 1, 2 and 3)

This eLearning is a three-part series on Involuntary Case Planning for Adult Protective Service (APS) workers. Providing services against client's wishes can be a difficult ethical dilemma for workers. It is important to give staff the opportunity to examine their motivations as well as set forth the standard for appropriate APS intervention. The purpose of this eLearning module is to learn how to identify involuntary interventions and when their use is appropriate.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Mental Health Issues in APS Practice

Part 1 of this eLearning is designed for Adult Protective Service (APS) workers who are unfamiliar with working with persons who are living with a mental illness or as a “refresher” in working with this population. It is intended as an introduction and to support on-going and additional study of mental health issues. Part 2 of this eLearning is intended to be taken after the Mental Health in Older Adults - Part 1 eLearning. It is designed for Adult Protective Service (APS) workers who are unfamiliar with working with persons who are living with a mental illness.

Credits: OHSTS (2 credits); Social Work (2 CEUs); Counselor (2 CEUs)

Physical and Developmental Disabilities

This eLearning is designed to teach participants about the unique ways in which Adult Protective Service (APS) workers may work a case with an individual with a physical, cognitive, or developmental disability.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Responding to Elder Physical Abuse and Neglect

This self-paced interactive eLearning brings together forensic research, geriatric medical information tailored for elder physical abuse investigators, and practical field skills. Learn to differentiate between suspicious and non-suspicious situations and develop your strategies for investigating when physical abuse is suspected.

Credits: OHSTS (2 credits); Social Work (2 CEUs); Counselor (2 CEUs)

Risk Assessment in APS

Every day, Adult Protective Services (APS) staff are responsible for making determinations of clients’ safety and risk, which can be the most difficult aspects of their work. In this self-paced, interactive eLearning, participants learn to assess the severity, urgency and likelihood of harm occurring for a client across five domains. They will also learn the benefits and limitations of risk assessment tools and how to develop risk-reduction service plans to help improve clients’ safety, security, and quality of life.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Substance Abuse and Mature Populations

This e-learning is designed for Adult Protective Service (APS) workers who are unfamiliar with working with persons with substance abuse issues or for workers who require a “refresher” in working with clients who have substance abuse issues.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

The APS Intake Interview

This self-paced interactive eLearning covers the materials regarding the initial interview of the reporting party that are presented in the instructor-led Initial Investigation class. Upon completion of this eLearning, participants will be better able to effectively determine whether a client meets Adult Protective Services (APS) criteria, to collect all material necessary for the APS worker to prepare for the interview and to warn the APS worker of possible safety hazards.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Undue Influence Committed by Professionals

Investigating and uncovering the evidence needed to confirm financial abuse by undue influence is difficult. When that crime is committed by professionals (doctors, attorneys, ministers, accountants, to name but a few) it becomes even more daunting.

Credits: OHSTS (1.5 credits); Social Work (1.5 CEUs); Counselor (1.5 CEUs)

Voluntary Case Planning in APS

In this eLearning, participants will learn the basic components of determining the intervention needs and developing a safety plan for elder abuse victims and identify the factors that influence the victim's intervention needs. Participants will learn strategies to work with the victim to develop mutually acceptable goals that will decrease the risk to the victim. Participants will also learn to use a safety planning tool developed for use with elder abuse victims.

Credits: OHSTS (1 credit); Social Work (1 CEU); Counselor (1 CEU)

Working with Self-Neglecting Clients (Parts 1, 2 and 3)

In this 3-part eLearning, participants will learn to define self-neglect, its prevalence, and indicators, distinguish self-neglect from other conditions, assess self-neglect in five domains, develop safety and risk reduction interventions for self-neglecting adults, document appropriate elements in self-neglect cases, and identify community partners in self-neglect cases.

Working with the Criminal Justice System

This training will help APS professionals work more effectively with the Criminal Justice System by providing information that will promote a better understanding of and appreciation for the law enforcement and prosecution roles and perspectives. It explains how the Criminal Justice System operates, how to read and understand criminal statutes, and how to build cases more effectively by applying case facts to crime elements.

Ongoing Specialized and Related Training for Caseworkers

Addressing and Resolving Ethical Dilemmas

The nature of human services creates ethical dilemmas, both intentional and unintentional, which requires consistent and adequate review of the ethical standards, risks, considerations, and approaches to solving them. Social workers and counselors are often faced with complex decision-making unknown to other fields, which can create the feeling of isolation or worse fear to act. This training will review the ethical standards mandated by the Ohio Counselor, Social Worker, Marriage and Family Therapist Board to ensure a competent understanding for effective application.

America's Opiate Epidemic: Pharmageddon

The abuse of opioids has continued to create devastating and significant challenges for health care and social service professionals. In fact, drug overdose deaths involving opioids have steadily increased across the last decade. Although the major dimensions of the opioid crisis involve young adults, the fallout from this crisis can also be found from the increase of older adults with substance use disorders of Opiates. This workshop will highlight the evolution of opiate use in America and underscore the devastating impact that opioids have had on our society. A review of substance use disorders and research-supported treatment models will be offered to assist professionals when working with older adults who present with a substance use disorders of Opiates.

An Overview of Heroin and Opiate Addiction

Tragically, opioid and heroin addiction have become common place in American society. While opiate and heroin addiction have many tragic outcomes, the addictive powers of these substances have created a crisis for social service professionals who serve older adults. Although most individuals associate heroin/opiate addiction with younger generations, the older adult population has unique characteristics that create vulnerabilities for substance use disorders of heroin and opiates. As such, social service professionals hold a vital role when working with aging consumers who are impacted by heroin/opiate addiction. Additionally, older adults are also victimized by relatives and associates who are using opiates/heroin. This workshop offers an overview of heroin and opiate addiction and its relevance with older adults. Specifically, this workshop identifies common trends associated with heroin and opiate use as well as the impact on the lives of older adults. Evidenced-based treatment strategies for opiate addiction will also be discussed within this educational workshop.

Anxiety and Depression in Older Adults

According to the World Health Organization, by 2020, depression is predicted to be the leading cause of disability world-wide. Late life depression can be an overwhelming force for clients and for their care givers. Depression in older adults differs in many ways from depression in younger clients. It is not a normal part of the human aging process. Symptom presentation can be easily confused with other conditions that commonly affect primarily the geriatric patient; clinicians and caregivers can miss warning signs and indicators that can lead to correct diagnosis, and thus to treatment. The same concept holds true for geriatric anxiety. It is often misdiagnosed and thus mistreated. The number and type of co-morbid medical conditions also complicates accurate diagnosis as well as symptom relief. This session will present key findings from current research to assist you in addressing this challenging situation.

APS Legal Framework and Non-Voluntary Interventions

This workshop will review Adult Protective Service (APS) legal mandates and interventions which are unique to APS to protect older vulnerable adults from the adverse consequences of maltreatment. We will review the legal criteria required to petition Probate Court for a Protective Service Order. Key elements include the outcome of the APS investigation, the adult's capacity and ability to consent for protective services and potential consequences to the adult if no action is taken. Attendees will learn when and how to effectively consider Protective Services Orders to protect high risk adults. In addition, we explore other civil legal interventions such as guardianship and civil commitment to best assist adults. The workshop will review the principles of APS, by further examining the elements of autonomy, choices, least restrictive alternative and mandate to protect the victim. Several case studies will be discussed with opportunities for participants to utilize their learning.

Building Trust-Creating Strong Relationships with Peers and Those Served

When asked, most people judge people as not trustworthy. Having the trust of others helps get good work done, but if you ask how they build trust with co-workers, adults, families, and others served, their answers are often simplistic. However, it may not be clear how others actually access their trustworthiness. Participants will increase their knowledge in ways to maintain trust in the workplace and home. Participants will develop and sustain others' trust by consistently and intentionally speaking and acting in ways that other people consider to be trustworthy. Also, learning to talk constructively with people about distrust and learning how to restore trust with others when it has been broken will be learned and practiced.

Chill Out: Managing Your Anger and Theirs

Human Services workers have different constraints than those working in the private sector. They don't have the flexibility of declaring, "the customer is always right". And, they have more impact on people's lives. The difficult position of having to deal with angry, hostile people can cause a worker's own anger to flare up, leading to an adverse reaction from their clients and a potentially dangerous situation. Documentation with a Purpose

Documentation is one of the primary duties of a worker. Workers are responsible for documenting all interactions with clients, which include phone calls, home visits, interactions with collateral contacts, and more. Workers are unable to write down everything a client says or does therefore being able to summarize and document the highlights of the contact is essential. These notes, while written and documented at the time of the incident, could be used later such as a court appearance. Therefore, well-written notes that are clear and concise are essential for all social service workers. This training is an interactive training, which allows workers to develop skills to improve their case documentation.

Laughing Just for the Health of It

Laughter and humor provide some wonderful benefits. No matter how old we are, or what our physical or mental abilities may be, we can all laugh. Laughing unleashes a host of health benefits, including combating depression, dementia, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's. Laughter has been found to be a sound form of complementary medicine for seniors that can help keep them in good health and good cheer. Many older adults suffer from at least one or two chronic conditions. Laughter boosts the immune system, relieves pain and is good for the cardiovascular, respiratory and nervous systems. Researchers have also found that people with a sense of humor can expect to live longer than those who have difficulty laughing at daily events.

Managing My Schedule for Workers

Dealing with individuals in crisis, workers can find it difficult to keep focused and organized. It is not uncommon to be overwhelmed and confused and not know what to do to change the situation when in the middle of their challenging days and decisions that demand immediate attention. Workers step into the cases of crisis management, conflicted stories, severe abuse, overwhelming neglect and more. The very core of the workers' daily tasks has been proven to break down resilience and leave the caseworker feeling stress, confused and unable to decide which way to go or what should be done first. Dealing with situations in making critical decisions can be an emotionally paralyzing moment of time. Some workers shut down and the work is left undone – or done partially as they “sprint” from activity to activity. These challenges can leave a worker feeling overwhelmed for prolonged periods of time. When experiencing these different challenges, the worker can find their capacity to plan, make decisions of what to prioritize as first almost impossible. Learning to manage a schedule is critical for caseworker and when able to do this effectively, they become a model for the families with whom they are working.

Managing Time Conflicts to Reduce Stress for Human Service Workers

Fifty percent of workers say their workload this year is more demanding than last year (Harris Interactive). It is a fact that today's worker is working longer hours than ever before. It is also a fact that the average person wastes between two and three hours per day! (The 26 Hour Day, Vince Panella). There is the potential to get more done each day if we learn to maximize the power each hour. Although stress is a reality of working in the modern work world, it does not have to hinder our work performance. In fact, we can harness the power of stress by simply changing the way we think about stress.

Motivational Interviewing: Preparing the Elderly for Change

APS Caseworkers are frequently challenged by a client's lack of motivation to change negative behaviors, which have contributed to risk to their health and safety. This is particularly true in the case of individuals who are struggling with substance use disorders. Motivational Interviewing is an evidence-based counseling style which adopts a brief intervention format, using critical elements that serve as catalysts for motivation and change. Motivational Interviewing addresses how to strengthen client intrinsic motivation to change and reduce ambivalence. This workshop serves as an introduction to Motivational Interviewing and gives participants the basic tools necessary to incorporate this intervention into their practice.

Overcoming Critical Incident Stress in Human Services

Human services can be called the heart of the government, while the heart heals, it also feels. When human services workers are exposed to the knowledge of their client's trauma, it can have devastating effects on their physical, psychological and emotional well-being. Critical incident stress can be experienced by human services workers anytime they are exposed to their client's trauma on the job. This workshop deals with strategies to help workers heal and deal with critical incident stress both in the short and long term for better health and well-being.

Overview of Addictions: Family and Caregiver Implications

The older adult population has unique characteristics that create vulnerabilities for substance use disorders. As such, social service professionals hold a vital role when working with older adults who are impacted by substance abuse addiction. Older adults are often victimized by family members and/or caregivers who are using various substances. This workshop offers an overview of addiction and its relevance with older adults. Specifically, this workshop identifies common trends associated with substance abuse and how that may affect the lives of older adults. Evidenced-based resources for addiction will also be discussed.

Safety Awareness and Self-Protection: Working with Angry and Irate People

It may seem there is little one can do to defuse the anger and hostility of others. Sometimes it seems to be set off by the smallest things; and above all, it seems to be unpredictable. Even so, workers can do things to defuse the anger and reduce abusive behavior. People can learn to act in ways that reduce this kind of behavior and ensure that they do not do anything that will result in an unpleasant situation deteriorating even further. This workshop not only covers early recognition and de-escalation of anger in others, but also explores our own triggers in dealing with anger and conflict management.

The Role of APS in Questioning Capacity Versus Competency

Mental capacity is complex, multidimensional, and can be affected by many factors. Adults can be mentally incapacitated for a multitude of reasons, including cognitive impairment, psychosis, alcoholism, and severe developmental disabilities. Professionals that erroneously assume capacity on behalf of an adult can cause significant harm to the adult. Professionals serving vulnerable adults carry a substantial responsibility to avoid premature and unsupported conclusions regarding a client's cognitive abilities. Knowing when to seek formal evaluations based on professional observations and collateral data is critical. In this workshop, attendees will obtain detailed information on the factors that influence capacity and examine practical screening tools to effectively conduct cognitive screenings to avoid inaccurate assumptions regarding the adult's abilities.

Using Positive Psychology and Clinical Resilience, Wellness and Happiness in the Prevention and Management of Mental Health Disorders

In the past, researchers used to think that the best way to improve human functioning was to understand and prevent disease. In recent years, however, we have recognized that much can be gained by examining and understanding the ingredients for wellness. Positive psychology refers to the study of happiness, as opposed to the study of unhappiness, and recent research shows that positive psychology as a modality can be as effective as Cognitive Behavioral Treatment in the treatment of depression. Module 1: Developing a Management Mindset

You did it! After several rounds of interviewing, you have been selected for promotion in a social service organization. It quickly becomes clear that you have a lot to learn about how to get work done through other people. Attend this training to discuss the roles, responsibilities and initial skill sets to be acquired by a newly promoted manager.

Module 2: Developing a Management Skillset

Practice strategies designed to build your skills in coaching, mentoring, and mobilizing staff to provide more effective services to vulnerable adults and their families. Leave with increased confidence and competence in helping others do their best work under your supervision to promote strength-based services.

Module 3: Purpose Driven Planning

The work unit that a new supervisor leads reflects the larger organization in which it exists. The culture of the organization, its' purpose, goals, standards, policies, and procedures all influence the work of each department. This training asks supervisor's attending to construct a purpose-critical structure in their work unit by shaping the culture of the unit, setting both task and relationship oriented annual goals, underlying those goals with behavioral performance standards, and writing and interpreting policies and procedures in such a manner that the job gets done right, on time, every time to promote effective services to vulnerable adults and their families.

Module 4: Purpose Driven Action

The work unit that a new supervisor leads reflects the larger organization in which it exists. The culture of the organization, its' purpose, goals, standards, policies, and procedures all influence the work of each department. This training asks supervisor's attending to construct a purpose-critical structure in their work unit by shaping the culture of the unit, setting both task and relationship oriented annual goals, underlying those goals with behavioral performance standards, and writing and interpreting policies and procedures in such a manner that the job gets done right, on time, every time to promote effective services to vulnerable adults and their families.

Module 5: Overcoming Resistance to Change

The helping professions are in a state of rapid change, causing instability, rumors, and frustration throughout social service systems. The truth is, changes are likely to continue impact service delivery over the next decade at unprecedented rates, and those who resist will be left along the way. Attend this webinar to appreciate the leader's role in decreasing resistance to change.

Module 6: Leading Change

Attend this training to apply Kotter's Eight Steps for Leading Change to plan and implement upcoming changes into your system promoting strength-based services to vulnerable adults and their families. Come away with renewed commitment and confidence in facilitating successful and enduring change in your workplace.

Module 7: Building a Cooperative Team

It is sometimes daunting to manage a variety of individuals in a manner that consistently promotes professional growth and capitalizes on each person's unique talents. It becomes even more challenging to pull those diverse individuals into a team that communicates effectively, cooperates freely with one another, and collaborates spontaneously when issues must be solved together.

Module 8: Fostering a Collaborative Team

Is it possible for your team members to cooperate well with one another yet not be able or willing to collaborate effectively? Collaboration is the process of two or more people or organizations working together to complete a task or achieve a goal. Collaboration is like cooperation however most collaboration requires leadership and a coordinated effort. This training addresses dynamics of team functioning and gives insights into individual differences that, if properly leveraged, can lead to heightened team performance, and promote strength-based services to vulnerable adults and their families.

Module 9: Addressing Unwanted Team Behaviors

Today's workplace is rife with misbehavior; gossip, unwarranted criticism, bullying, unresolved conflict, ethical lapses, complaints, tattling, and low morale impacting services to vulnerable adults. Everyone thinks everyone else needs some discipline! Sources of team stress are everywhere, causing staffers to exhibit less than their best selves. This training offers effective interventions for these issues.

Module 10: Team Development, Discipline and Discrimination Issues

As a leader you are responsible to maintain a safe, non-hostile work environment. To do so means you must know how to spot discrimination in all its forms and address it with discussion and perhaps discipline. Attend this session to discuss federal discrimination laws, learn methods for developing team members before disciplining them, render disciplinary feedback that is meaningful and integrous.

Module 11: Performance Appraisal Magic

When you hear the words "performance appraisal" do they make you want to yawn, tremble, or flee? Often supervisors and managers dread giving appraisals every bit as much as staffers fear receiving them. The repercussions of an anger-provoking performance appraisal can lead to retaliatory actions, and decreased performance on the part of the disgruntled employee impacting services to vulnerable adults. This can leave the manager feeling punished for their hard work in preparing and delivering a comprehensive evaluation of their subordinate's work. If this mindset exists in your workplace, you can reverse this downward trend by creating an "incubator for talent" in your work domain.

Performance appraisal is an opportunity for line staff and leadership to come together in an intimate conspiracy that inspires performance excellence impacting services to vulnerable adults.

Module 12: Writing and Monitoring Performance Plans

The job your team does is far too important to accept substandard performance. No one likes to discuss poor performance with a team member but such a discussion, if properly done, can be transformational for the employee. Attend this webinar to learn how to write an effective performance improvement plan, present the plan to the employee, monitor, and document the employee's progress, conduct coaching meetings that support and extend the improvement, and terminate the plan successfully.

Managing My Schedule for Supervisors

Those in leadership often find it difficult to keep objective and strong when in the middle of their challenging days and decisions that demand immediate attention. Staff and teams are required to step into the cases of crisis management, conflicted stories, severe abuse, overwhelming neglect and more. The very core of the workers daily tasks has been proven to break down resilience and leave the worker and supervisor feeling stressed, confused, and unable to decide which way to go or what should be done first. Dealing with daily with situations in making critical decisions for and with clients can be an emotionally paralyzing moment of time. Some workers shut down and the work is left undone – or done partially as they “sprint” from activity to activity. These challenges can leave a supervisor or manager feeling overwhelmed for prolonged periods of time. When experiencing these different challenges, worker or supervisors can find their capacity to plan, make decisions of what to do first or to generate an effective schedule almost impossible. Supervisors have an opportunity at these difficult times to model time management, resilience and problem solving. This presents a parallel process whereby supervisor, workers have the same opportunity to learn to model this with individuals with whom they are working.

Successful Supervision in Social and Adult Protective Services

Social and Adult Protective Services supervision is a balance and often supervisors are required to supervise multiple program areas. In this workshop, participants will gain knowledge that successful supervision requires purposeful effort. Participants will be introduced to successful supervision strategies to include: an understanding of adult learning theory and learning styles, effective communication strategies, critical thinking skills, change management and conflict resolution techniques. Knowledge learned in this workshop will help participants increase their success as a supervisor to better serve older adults, families, and caseworkers.

Supervision Across the Generations

The current workforce is comprised of multiple generations: Veterans, Baby Boomers, Generation X, and Millennials. Supervisors can improve their effectiveness by recognizing the unique needs, work habits, communications styles, motivating factors, and professional preferences of each generation. This workshop will explore the literature on each generation and provide usable tools that can be applied in social service agencies.

To Lead or Not to Lead: That is the Question

The role of a supervisor is like the role of a parent. Supervisors need to provide guidance, support motivation and feedback. The most important factor in employee productivity is the relationship between employee and supervisor. However, this relationship can be damaged when supervisors must make unpopular decisions to provide unwanted but necessary feedback. This workshop will explore these dynamics.
